The American Agriculturist for August is an excellent number of this superior Journal. Among the leading contributors are: H. A. HAZEN, on Farm Law; Col. M. C. WELD, on Agricultural Shows—their abuses; D. Z. EVANS, JR., on Breeding Geese; Prof. JAMES LAW, on Contagious Cattle Diseases; Prof. G. C. SWALLOW, on Forage crops of the Southwest; W. F. BROWN, on Preventable Losses on the Farm; E. E. REXFORD, on Attractive Country Roads. This number contains a carefully prepared and very large variety of interesting facts and statistics, giving a full showing of the whole Agricultural work, resources, and productions of the United States, and of each State and Territory—of great value for future reference. The leading illustrated articles are: Propagation by Budding (8 engravings); A Country House Costing $3,000 (5 engravings); The Large Grape-vine Caterpillars (4 engravings); The Spotted Grape-Beetle; The Northern and Southern Black Bass; The Corn-Worm; The Sheep's Sore; A Group of Lillies; A Lawn Weed; A Plant Monstrosity; Pruning the Tomato; and a large and Cattle Picture. The suggestions for the Season are full of practical hints and suggestions to the Farmer and Gardener. The Hamburg Columns show us some popular and startling frauds. The Households contains illustrated articles on Side Kitchen Closet, Home-Made Writing Desk, Fruit Drier, Side Shelf, etc., with practical articles on Tomato Catsup, Making Pickles, Cheap Cisterns, What to Wear, and What to Eat, etc. The Youth's Department is more than usually fine, with 17 engravings. The Doctor's Talks about Summer Fruits, Aunt Ada takes the Children to the Sea-Shore, and the Voyage of the Waterwitch, by Miss Carr, will please every one, young and old.

Published by the ORANGE JUDG Co., 751 Broadway, N. Y. $1.50 per Year; Single Copy, 15 cents.

Alexandria is said to be so badly demolished, that it will take twenty years to put it back where it was.

A VIGOROUS GROWTH
Of the hair is often promoted by using Parker's Hair Balsam. It always restores the youthful color and lustre to gray hair, gives it new life and removes all irritation and dandruff.

At a fair of the Congregationist-Church at Palestine, Texas, forty young women gave an exhibition drill with fans, showing how gracefully and bewitchingly these articles can be used. Then the fans were sold by auction, the prices depending on the popularity of its contributors, the whole profit reaching $350.

Meeting of Grand Lodge Knights of Honor.
Special to the Vicksburg Herald.]

CANTON, July 18.—The fifth annual meeting of the Grand Lodge Knights of Honor convened to-day. One hundred and eight Lodges were represented. Judge S. S. Calhoun delivered the address of welcome and was responded to by Judge H. S. Van Eaton. Aberdeen was selected for the next place of meeting. A grand banquet to-night and ball to-morrow night.

BALLOU'S MONTHLY ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE.—The August number of the popular Ballou's Magazine will find many readers and admirers, for it is just the kind of a serial for travelers during the hot weather. It is filled with a choice selection of good stories, engravings, and poetry, and the whole can be obtained for but fifteen cents, the cheapest and best magazine in the country. It is invaluable for the seaside or on the farm. A sample copy will satisfy any one that Ballou's is a convenient thing to have in the house or on the car.

Published by Thomas and Talbot, 23 Hawley Street, Boston, Mass., at only $1.50 per annum, postpaid, and for sale at all the news depots in the country at 15 cents a copy.

—The Rev. E. O. Barnes, the Kentucky evangelist, who has had such remarkable success of late, is not illiterate or a backwoodsman, as his methods might lead one to suppose. If he uses the dialect of the Kentucky mountaineers, or the homely phrases of the negroes, it is from choice. Although born in Kentucky, he is a graduate of Princeton College, and served fifteen years as a missionary in India, after which he had a pastorate in Chicago. All this time he was a Presbyterian, but on taking up the work as a revivalist, six years ago, he withdrew from that denomination. His power over the people of the Kentucky mountain region proved phenomenal, and they firmly believe in him as a worker of miracles. He founds his authority for anointing the sick and penitent on this verse from the Epistle of St. James: "Is any sick among you?—Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins they shall be forgiven him."

Health, the poor man's riches, and the rich man's bliss, is maintained by the judicious use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla which strengthens and invigorates the system by purifying the blood. It is so highly concentrated that it is the most economical medicine for this purpose that can be used.

Our information is that Chancellor Morgan is fairly on the race track with Manning. He is a popular man among his people; said to be one of the best men in his district, and will no doubt prove a strong competitor. He is perhaps the most available man against Chalmers, the convention could put out.—Corinth Herald.

The breeding of silk-worms and raising of silk is an industry which is now attracting much attention in this country. It is a most profitable business and a very pleasant one easily carried on by ladies and children. There is very little expense incurred to begin with and the food for the worms cost nothing, it being supplied by the leaves of the mulberry tree, which we all know grows to perfection in this section. There is no reason why silk culture could not be successfully carried on here, and it may yet become one of the industries of the piney woods.—Gulf Coast Advertiser.

Mrs. Scoville emphatically denies that she attempted to send Guitau poisoned flowers, but the offer of his body cheap for cash is still open.

Roscoe Conkling was serenaded at his old home in Utica, Tuesday night, by his neighbors of all shades of politics. In his speech, in response he said:

Old party issues have largely passed away, at least as dividing party lines. We are in a period of peace and great prosperity, but let us never forget that prosperity often tests and tries the wisdom of nations and men more even than adversity. The tendency is to spending largely. The tendency in Government is to profuse, perhaps lavish appropriations of public money. In affairs of Government and in affairs of business, unless I greatly mistake the lesson, the need and admonition of the hour is frugality, foresight and care. We have more need of a brake than of steam in a good many ways just now.

At the approaching congressional election every delegate should be left to act free. There should be no bandages placed upon them.—Oxford Falcon.

A copy of the ADVERTISER for one year will be given to any person that sends us the largest watermelon by August 10th.

Oscar Wilde on Jefferson Davis and the South.

Atlanta Constitution.]

He lives in a very beautiful house by the sea, amid lovely trees. He impressed me very much as a man of the keenest intellect, and a man fairly to be a leader of men, on account of a personality that is as simple as it is strong, and an enthusiasm that is as fervent as it is faultless. We in Ireland are fighting for the principle of autonomy against empire, for independence against centralization, for the principles for which the South fought. So it was a matter of immense interest and pleasure to me to meet the leader of such a great cause. Because, although there may be a failure in fact, in idea there is no failure possible. The principles for which Mr. Davis and the South went to war cannot suffer defeat. I had read Mr. Davis's book, which is a masterpiece, although to us in Europe the elaborate detail of military manœuvre is at times a little burdensome. But there are passages in which he dwells on the principles of the Southern Confederacy, that were read by us with the keenest interest and delight. It is impossible not to think nobly of a country that has produced Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington and Jefferson Davis.

Besides its great men, I admire in the South the wonderful beauty of its vegetation. I have seen no forest in Europe more wonderful, no flowers more exquisite in perfume or color. It is worth while to come over here merely to see the magnolias in full bloom. It—the South—should be the home of art in America, because it possesses the most perfect surroundings; and now that it is recovering from the hideous ruin of the war, I have no doubt that all these beautiful arts, in whose cause I will spend my youth in pleading, will spring up among you. The South has produced the best poet of America—Edgar Allan Poe; and with all its splendid traditions, it will be impossible not to believe that she will continue to perfect what she has begun so nobly. The very physique of the people in the South is far finer than that in the North, and a temperament infinitely more susceptible to the influences of beauty.

A TRAVELER'S STORY.

After spending months at watering places and consulting the best physicians without benefit, I returned home disheartened and expected to die. A friend urged a trial of Parker's Ginger Tonic.—Three bottles and careful diet have brought me excellent health and spirits, and I hope my experience may benefit similar sufferers.—Cincinnati lady. (See other column.)

The Memphis Appeal for 1882.

In issuing its prospectus for 1882, the APPEAL has but one promise to make, and that is, a determination to maintain its character and rank in the forefront of American newspapers.—The Appeal is now regarded as one of the institutions of the South. Its history for the past forty-one years is the history of the development of Southern thought, Southern politics, Southern industry and Southern literature, and its sympathies and aims will be the same in the future. The paper will continue to be the constant reflex of the most reliable intelligence obtainable from all parts of the world. It will remain inflexibly Democratic, but its space will be mainly devoted to news, the interest of agriculture, trade, commerce, manufactures, internal improvements, the development of Southern resources and all branches of industry. While always on the alert for the latest intelligence, it will avoid the sensational, and will never pander to vitiated tastes. The APPEAL is especially devoted to the interests of Tennessee and Memphis, its great commercial emporium, and will use its best abilities to promote both. It realizes that the future empire of this country lies in the South and West, and will labor to combine the political and business relations of these two sections in inducing the legislation of Congress for improving the navigation of the Mississippi river and its tributaries.

WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL.
The Courier-Journal—Henry Watterson, Editor—is by circulation and reputation the acknowledged Representative Newspaper of the South, having by far the largest circulation of any paper at the South, and a reputation that renders it well known throughout the United States.

The Courier Journal is a consolidation of the Louisville Courier, Louisville Journal and Louisville Democrat, and is now in its fiftieth year. Being a long-established and thoroughly-responsible paper, occupying its own property worth over $500,000, and having the most costly machinery and ample means, subscribers in making advance payments for it do not run the risk of losing their money, as is too frequently the case in papers that have a precarious existence of only a few years.

Specimen copies and circulars giving special terms to agents for subscriptions to the Courier-Journal will be sent free of charge to any one on application. Subscription terms, postage free, are: For Daily, $12; Sunday, $3; Weekly, $1.50 a year; Clubs of five, and over, $1.20 each for yearly subscription; $1 for 7 months; 50 cents for three months.

NEW YORK'S

GAS LIT LIFE ILLUSTRATED.

The above is the title of a series of sketches of the shady side of life and character in the Great Metropolis, now being fully illustrated from authentic sketches in the

NATIONAL POLICE GAZETTE

of New York, which are realistic and faithful portrayments from real life.—

The illustrations are by the best artistic talent attainable, and the descriptions are from the pen of the most gifted journalist and brilliant writer in America, who, it is conceded, has rivalled that master hand at word painting
